

C2C Show Notes

Aspects of past “hits”

- 2001 had ‘life changing tipping point’ in late June and early July 2001 in advance of 9/11.
- Attack on House or Assembly (preceding anthrax)
- Land driven back to previous age, 300,000 dead in Aug 2004 prior to Banda Aceh quake
- “Gem of the ocean, maritime disaster prior to Columbia disaster...things like that.

Overview

- Predictive linguistics since early 2001
- www.urbansurvival.com and www.halfpasthan.com – A former big software company in Redmond fellow did massive SQL databases and came up with the concept of short and long-term values to language use – tears apart the patterns and gets a view of the future from that work.

2007 into 2008

- Linguistically 2007 was the “Year of emergence” where we see macro trends forming
- 2008 is “Year of manifestation” and it will be “ruled” to use the astrological context by two memes (thought viruses) “Secrets Revealed” and “Economic Collapse”

Example of Lang. Shift

- Words have short and long term values and hot/cold emotional values.
- As these drift around over time, we think there is some useful information about the future.
- “Ian I’m gonna jack your ride”
- “Ian, I will institute a recovery to repossess your automobile.
- Which sentence is most likely to happen first?

Disclaimer

- None of the following are calls or inciting anything. It is only a report of what’s in computer modelspace based on currently circulating language on the internet.
- It is not advise. Just a best efforts attempt to divine the future using millions of reads of discussion groups and such.

A Few Highlights

- Catastrophic collapse of the dollar is possible – as the language is active around that concept.
- Some kind of winter/spring natural disaster which caused people to become angry about government response
- Possibly early elections, or at least calls for that because of anger.
- Global economic collapse possible in Fall 2008 cascading of the US woes

March

- Again, in modelspace we have the “millions of small [financial] particles causing problems – repudiation of credit card debt.
- Late March we see a female leader/figure emerge who will begin to fill a role as ‘social unifier’ for the financial rebellion/revolution meme. Most likely, she will be from south/central American highlands and her visibility and prestige will grow in national media over the summer. It could be someone like Vandana Shiva, but not saying it will be her, but the core issues or food, water, and seed sovereignty and getting a grip on globalism, but linguistically they seem similar. *Shiva was active in the Chipko movement in the early 1970’s where women in India hugged trees to keep them from being cut down – and so linguistically was part of the linguistic formations around tree hugging/tree huggers and such

January

- January “secrets Revealed” something comes out that is ‘unauditable’ and we see some of the presidential wannbe’s pull out of the race over disclosures of their links to what in model space is the finance/powers-that-be.
- USA-Pop begins a shift out of paper assets into defensive positions to protect their retirements which will be coming into question. Perhaps due in part to the continuing CMO/CDO paper collapse and how much has gone into pension funds.

April

- Like to see a widespread tax rebellion – people putting in phony claims for refunds, delaying filing, and so forth as we see dollar crashing, market declining and so forth with lack of government fix.
- Natural Disaster: We get high winds/damaging rains over wide enough area to feed another modelspace meme: Diaspora (population in forced relocation). Incredible tornado season with heavy rains or out of season hurricane, that kind of thing and a lack of government response.

February

- Acceleration in the ‘employment crash’ meme, construction slows dramatically including commercial.
- Due to high prices, food enters its ‘encounters with scarcity’ and gasoline soars (due to falling dollar)
- Key: People’s ability to live is tied to debt – and with credit card defaults expected to rise in this period, the widespread repudiation of credit card debt will mark the emergence of the civil disobedience meme to the corporate cannibalism/powers that be/global elite if you want to think of it that way.

May-June

- More of the same – but somewhere in here we get a temporal marker as a group of veterans takes over a national monument and the powers-that-be stand down because of the media coverage.
- Also in this period we see calls for an early election as the government response to the natural disaster earlier in the year will be judged a failure and the economy will be in full-scale slide now.

Summer 2008

- Tensions build in cities, encounters scarcity (.e.g. food/fuel) are about
- The populace of the US impacted by a condition like post traumatic stress – about the best we can wrap our heads around it, it will be something like “time shocked” or “time stunned”
- Just as you wrap you head around one big change, another will come along bigger and harder to absorb

Balance of 2008

- Bad gets worse
- Highest payoff hedges for most people today will likely be
  - Debt reductions
  - Getting in shape
  - Having modest stores of food/clothing
  - Agile mindset to adapt/cope with any change
  - Fallback and backup plans – like relatives in another city/state – that kind of thing.
  - Learning to think independently and get a vision of thye future before it arrives so you can move ahead of crowds and thus maintain your freedom of action

September

- Mood of the population improves: People have a renewed sense of optimism that the corporate/elite can and will be replaced in the elections and the ‘us against them’ grows
- Possibility that elections will be held early, but it could just be language around that meme

2009 Global Coastal Event

- The bigger things are in modelspace, the more lead time we get
- Collapse of the dollar has been in modelspace for 2 ½ years or so. Even longer has been Global Coastal event.
- Global Coast Event likely in early to mid 2009
- Permanent loss of low lying territory globally but one continent in particular get hit badly. We don’t know which one, but we hope it’s like a Greenland or some not heavily populated area. (*working on this now, but it’s at the limit of our software)
- Places to avoid: anything at sea level (Bangladesh/Florida/ etc).

October

- Global emotional release event begins – largely economic.
- Think of the US economy as a lit fuse that is lit over the early part of 2008
- In late 2008 the rest of the world’s currencies are ‘touched off’ by the dollar and US decline.
- May be a global replay of what the 1932 bond crash in the Great Depression was.